

1. Circle the correct option.

1. According to Aristotle, friendship is to our happiness.
 - a) common
 - b) ancient
 - c) essential
 - d) unnecessary
2. Which one does not belong to the category of friendships of utility?
 - a) business partners
 - b) exercise buddies
 - c) colleagues
 - d) schoolmates
3. What is the common point of friendships of pleasure?
 - a) shared enjoyment
 - b) promotion
 - c) business
 - d) knowing each other
4. Which of these friendships is the scarcest?
 - a) Friendships of utility
 - b) Friendships of pleasure
 - c) Friendships of the good
 - d) Friendships of ancient times
5. Friendships of pleasure end when ...
 - a) it takes time to know each other
 - b) we never hear from our friends
 - c) it is based on mutual respect
 - d) you lose interest in the common pleasure

2. Answer and discuss the following questions.

- a) Discuss Aristotle's quote given in the first paragraph.
- b) What are your thoughts on these types of friendships defined by Aristotle?
- c) Can you think of any other friendship beyond Aristotle's three categories?
- d) What categories do your friendships fall into?
- e) Do we need friends more when we are happy or when we are in need?